FOREWORD

The Digest of Public General Bills and Selected Resolutions was prepared originally for the Second Session of the Seventy-fourth Congress and has been published for all subsequent Congresses.

The purpose of the Digest is to furnish, in the form of a brief synopsis, the essential features of public bills and resolutions and changes made therein during the legislative process so that Members will have a readily available source from which they may answer inquiries concerning these measures.

In order to furnish Members with frequent coverage the Digest is normally published during each Session in 5 cumulative issues with biweekly supplementation as may be needed. Each cumulative issue is divided into 4 sections. The first section (green pages) contains a listing, by number, of the bills that have been reported by Committees and the current status of each such bill. Synopses in this section (green pages) are revised when necessary to reflect the changes made during the legislative process. The second section (yellow pages) contains a numerical listing of public laws enacted during the current Session together with the bill numbers of such laws. The third section contains the synopses of public bills and resolutions in numerical order as introduced. The fourth section is a subject index. The final issue of the Digest for each Congress contains a fifth section which provides a ready reference, by number, to public bills and resolutions introduced by each Member (Member Index).

Preparation of the Digest is the responsibility of the Bill Digest Section, American Law Division, Legislative Reference Service, Edwin B. Kennerly, Editor.

Requires the President to furnish the Tariff Commission with a copy of each proclamation issued and requires the Commission to make an investigation and within 60 days to report to the President its findings as to whether it would be disadvantageous to the domestic interest for the proclamation to become effective. If the Tariff Commission finds that it would not be disadvantageous to the domestic interest for the proclamation to become effective, it shall become effective at the end of the 60 day period. If the Tariff Commission finds it would be disadvantageous to the domestic interest, the proclamation shall not become effective unless Congress adopts, at the request of the President, and within 30 days, a concurrent resolution stating that it wishes such proclamation to become effective. In such case the proclamation becomes effective 30 days after adoption of such proclamation. At least one year must have elapsed before the Commission may investigate the same subject matter at the request of workers or industry. In the case of a petition by a firm for a determination of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance, the Commission shall determine whether as a result of concessions granted under trade agreements, an article like or directly competitive with an article produced by the firm is being imported into the United States in such increased quantities as to cause serious injury to such firm and a like determination shall be made when the petition is made by workers to determine if the importation of the article in question is threatening significant unemployment. Requires the Commission to hold public hearings and to report to the President the results of its investigation within 120 days unless the President extends the time for an additional 30 days. After receiving an affirmative finding from the Tariff Commission the President may provide, with respect to such industry, that its firms may request the Secretary of Commerce for certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance and that its workers may request the Secretary of Labor for similar certification.

In connection with assistance to firms, makes provisions for certification of adjustment proposals, the use of existing agencies, the giving of technical and financial assistance, and tax relief. Upon request of the President, Congress, the Senate Committee on Finance or the Ways and Means Committee of the House, the Commission shall investigate and report within six months whether the price of any article with respect to which the President has issued a proclamation is less than the cost of producing such articles in the United States. If the Tariff Commission finds that the price is less than the cost of producing it in the United States, it shall increase the duty to equalize the price with such cost and shall notify the President who shall by proclamation, raise the duty on such articles. The President shall deposit the amount of customs duties so collected in a special fund to be used for underdeveloped nations.
